

GRIZZLY

GRIZZLY

eric dolan

what is 27 dollars
is too windy
in a good way
shaking on the train

as a child lays in filth

hello baby

stand in your denim engine work schedule shifting every other taco bell is trash he tells us in the drive thru in the correct pronunciation of

Nevada, I knew you

I knew you by name

there are thousands of strangers in wash stations & if you dry certain shirts they shrink & since middle school I've stared at my stomach

but what good would that do laundry alone & eat ice, never eat ice, your grandmother choked, went hairdryer in throat

to melt Megan

say angel

everything is new there & I'm not talking about Reno

shoulder forward

worthwhile

alive

GRIZZLY was written by eric dolan

@ericericdolan

piratemotel.github.io

This chapbook utilizes two typefaces—Fanwood by Barry Schwartz and League Gothic by Caroline Hadilaksono, Micah Rich, and Tyler
Finck

